

Two-dimensional distribution of transformable random variables

Andrzej Zieliński

Warsaw University of Life Sciences, Poland

Abstract

Transformable random variable is a variable, which after power transformation with some parameter λ gets normal distribution. In the paper two-dimensional distribution of transformable random variables is considered. To approximate the value of correlation coefficient some integral formulas are used.

Keywords

Power transformation, Transformable random variable, Correlation coefficient.